Vet practice Herd type: Beef Dairy No. of cows

I wish to participate in: Johne's disease monitoring Neospora monitoring

- For Johne's disease we recommend that all cattle over two years old are tested annually.
- For Neospora we recommend that all breeding females over 12 months old are tested annually.

A good timing for both Johne's and Neospora blood testing is 1-3 months before the start of calving.

DAIRY HERDS – BATCH TESTING e.g. in all-year-round calving herds

If you have a dairy herd and are doing batch testing throughout the year e.g. at drying off then please indicate how many blood samples you will be submitting in a 12 month period:

Johne's disease: Greater than 100 but less than 200 samples Greater than 200 samples

Neospora: Greater than 100 samples

If you are testing fewer than 100 samples for Johne's disease and/or Neospora over a 12 month period our standard diagnostic test rates will apply.

I understand that if I submit fewer samples than I have indicated above the difference in the test rates will be charged.
